

Parisgrafs LOCALLY SPEAKING

"In every work that he began
he did it with all his heart—and prospered."

THIS afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, at the chamber of commerce a meeting of importance to every citizen of Lamar county will be held. L. E. Winter will be present to explain the federal farm board co-operative plan of marketing cotton. This is no time for indifference. If Lamar county wants a branch cotton office now is the time to act. Farmers and business men are urged to attend this meeting.

BERNIE Tindin hands in the following bit of good reading under the caption "Ask Me Another":

—What do you think of business conditions?
—They might be a lot worse.
—When will there be a turn for the better?
—Just as soon as the pessimists stop squawking.
—Is production running away from consumption?
—No, consumption is beginning to run ahead of production.
—Is that a good sign?
—You bet! It's the new prosperity sign.

AT LAST the old political pot has warmed up in Paris and Lamar county and is starting to boil. With but a few days left before the "battle of ballots" the candidates and their friends are busy as bees. The local candidates are making the best of every opportunity presented and the governor's race is really getting interesting.

ALMOST every day some one expresses the hope that the reading to take Crook will be given some work. If nothing else, they say, a grader that would reduce the high centers would be of great service to the hundreds who are daily driving out to the lake. It is a delightful place and our people are using it more this year than ever before.

TOMORROW (Thursday) night is the time of next good-will meeting which is to be held at Roston. Everything is in readiness and the party promises to be a success. Let as many Paris people as possible attend this event.

THAT is certainly good news coming from the board of directors of the Lamar District Fair to the effect that the new exhibit building for the women's clubs is to be erected in the near future, to be ready for the opening of the fair on Sept. 2.

ANOTHER wise decision by the fair board was to again offer fair tickets in coupon books of six tickets each for one dollar. This reduces admission to the fair grounds to only sixteen and two thirds cents. The tendency all over the country is to lower admission fees. It takes people to make a fair.

The first day of the fair, as usual, will be children's day, with all children admitted free for that day. In addition the fair officials are arranging a special program for the youngsters which ought to make it the greatest day in the history of the fair.

HERE is a letter in today's mail from a citizen of Paris who states that he has not lived here very long. He likes Paris but regrets to see many items that may appear of little importance overlooked. These, he said, are far more important than many may think for. He called attention to the fact that many street signs were turned the wrong way which made it very confusing to people not familiar with the streets.

The letter pointed out several specific instances where signs were turned the wrong way. "I do not mean to appear critical and am now not complaining, but felt that calling attention to these matters would help," he said.

W. H. P. Anderson drove up to Hugo Wednesday and delivered an address before the Lions Club in that city. Many Paris business men frequently visit service clubs in neighboring cities. It means better relations between towns when this work is going on. Inter-city relations is of importance to the development of an entire section. It is difficult for a town to live to itself and make progress. Folks in all our towns in this section should know one another better.

Low Water Rate Is Put In Force For Clarksville

Special to The News
CLARKSVILLE, July 22.—The city council in order to encourage a greater water consumption during July, August and September, voted to supply excess water to its patrons, at fifteen cents a thousand gallons.

Clarksville now has a new arrangement with a daily supply of more than 500,000 gallons, which for the first time, enables the city to offer such a rate to consumers.

This rate will prove a great boon to the city's water patrons, enabling them to use water liberally and pay only a small excess.

U. S. POPULATION IS 123 MILLION ESTIMATE SHOWS

Growth of Around 17-
246,000 People If Calculation Is True

8 STATES MUST
YET MAKE REPORT

Total Estimated On Basis of Preliminary Returns from Forty States

WASHINGTON, July 22. (AP)—A total of about 122,567,000 people—just a few thousand under 123,000,000—probably will be shown as the population of the United States for 1930 when the final count is announced here by director W. M. Stewart of the census.

The 1920 population was 105,710,000. Should final figures bear out the calculation the country would show a growth of around 17,246,000 people in ten years.

This approximate total figures has been calculated by the Associated Press on the basis of actual preliminary returns from 40 states and the District of Columbia. In these states, census supervisors have reported a total of 108,872,222 people as against 96,667,838 ten years ago, an increase of 14,133,815, or 14.61 per cent. For the decade of 1910-20 the rate of growth was 14.9 per cent.

The growth of these states, comprising almost 81 per cent of the population ten years ago, forms a close approximation of the rate of the growth of the nation, on that rate the entire country's population would be 122,567,000.

Census bureau officials have made their own estimates of the country's population as of April 1, but refuse to divulge their figures. Their population estimating material, which ticks off the increase in the number of people as calculated by experts from immigration statistics, births and deaths, placed the number of people in the United States on April 1 at midnight at 122,567,000.

Reports still have to come from eight states, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Oklahoma, Oregon, Louisiana, Mississippi, Arizona and Idaho. The estimated population of those states as of January 1 this year aggregated 21,641,618. That added to the forty other states brings an aggregate of 122,125,341 as the country's population.

Funds for Fair Building Being Raised Rapidly

More than $500 was in the bank as a start on the fund for building a new Women's exhibit building at the Lamar county fair grounds, before any of the committee began soliciting contributions according to R. O. Murphy of the committee appointed to secure the fund. Mr. Murphy said Tuesday night that individuals were subscribing to the fund as fast as they were called upon, and that present indications were that the fund would be raised within the next day or two.

Mr. Murphy said that the committee was anxious that all contributors to the fund send in their donations as quickly as possible. A committee has been appointed to arrange for the construction of the building, and just as soon as the funds are in the bank, construction will start. This has been done in order that the new building will be ready for the Lamar District Fair this fall.

W. H. P. ANDERSON ROTARY SPEAKER

Accepting the invitation of the Hugo club, W. H. P. Anderson visited that body Tuesday and made an address on "Proper Classification." Those who have had the pleasure of hearing Mr. Anderson speak know the subject was well handled.

The interchange of visits between Hugo and Paris Rotarians is a practice that has been helpful in promoting good will between the residents of the two cities.

Attend The News Election Party For Earliest Returns Saturday

Returns from the primary election Saturday will be as usual, displayed by The Morning News on the screen in front of The News building Saturday night, beginning as soon after the polls close as returns are available.

The state returns will be supplied to The News by the Texas Election Bureau, of which The News is the exclusive member in this section, and will be reliable. Returns will be given by counties on all state offices, and the service will continue as long as the election officials over the state continue to supply figures.

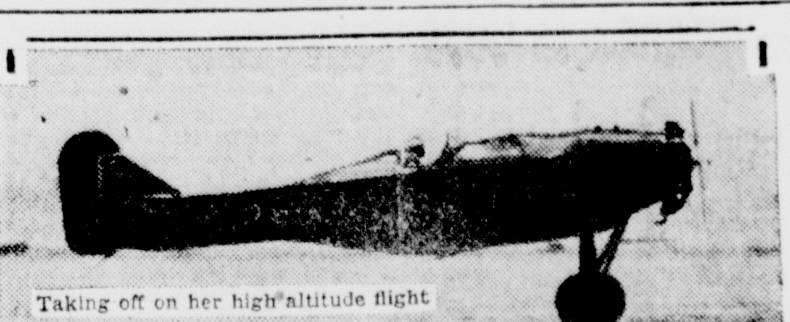

The returns from Lamar county will be tabulated by The News from figures that will be brought to Chairman W. H. P. Anderson, and Secretary A. W. Neville at The News office, and will be as complete as the count of the ballots permits.

The election service of The News heretofore has informed the people of this section of the results far in advance of any other medium and this service will be even better, as the election bureau is more thoroughly organized.

Come to The News building Saturday evening and see the returns ahead of any other source.

Seeks More Worlds

Farm Girl Who Holds New Altitude Mark,
Now Wants to Fly Farther Than Any Woman

Taking off on her high-altitude flight

RUTH ALEXANDER, with oxygen tube in mouth, ready for takeoff.

By Central Press

SAN DIEGO, Cal., July 22.—A Kansas farm girl who served an apprenticeship in a beauty parlor today seeks more worlds to conquer.

Within a week recently Ruth Alexander set two new world's altitude marks for women flying light air planes. Now she proposes to fly round-trip between the Mexican and Canadian borders stopping only at the northern end of the journey for gasoline and rest.

So high did she go during her altitude flight—25,000 feet above old terra firma—that she "passed out" and fell a full minute before regaining consciousness.

Flies Light Plane

Miss Alexander flies a light airplane. She believes light planes offer both the price and mechanical solution for private owners. The light plane will carry two people safely and comfortably.

With a relatively small engine—30-horsepower—she flies around the west and plans to use the same engine and low-wing monoplane in her "three countries" dash. Of course she's thrilled not only with the prospect of earning a niche in long-distance non-stop flying, but the excitement of high altitude flying also intrigues her.

"Some people continue to look at girl aviators," she says, "as freaks." (Continued on Page Three)

Big Crowd Is Expected At Roxton Good Will Meeting

Several hundred Paris people are expected to attend the second of the get-together meetings for citizens of the Parisarea, which will be held at Roxton next Thursday evening, July 25. The meeting will be held in the park near the railroad station. Approximately 1,000 persons attended the first of the get-together meetings which was held at Minter last Thursday evening. Preparations have been made to entertain an even larger crowd at Roxton. The Paris municipal band will give a concert, a number of Paris business men, and some of the poultry trippers who made the recent tour to Springfield, Missouri, will make brief talks.

Following the music, speeches, and other entertainment, the crowd will be served with cold drinks and ice cream free of charge by the business firms of Paris, through the chamber of commerce.

Four get-together meetings were planned for various points in the Parisarea, at Minter, Roxton, Detroit, and Chicota. At each place, the business men of Paris, through the chamber of commerce will furnish all the entertainment and refreshments. It is felt that such meetings will be of benefit to all citizens of the Parisarea in helping them to become better acquainted.

QUIET IN EGYPT AFTER OUTBREAKS

CAIRO, Egypt, July 22. (AP)—Three large Egyptian cities, including the capital Tuesday, survived ruefully the consequences of Monday's political rioting. Troops and police were on the alert to guard against possible outbreaks, but all was quiet.

and in giving them an opportunity to discuss their common problems. Everyone who is interested in creating additional good will between citizens of the various communities in the Parisarea is urged to attend these meetings.

CANDIDATES WORK TO HOLD VOTES

All Are Certain of Place In Runoff If Statements
Are True

By the Associated Press
The final week of campaigning before the first primary almost half completed, each of the leading candidates for governor Tuesday night was studying means of preventing the ever-threatening last minute shift of votes away from him.

All were already certain of places in the runoff if their public utterances could be accepted at face value, but that did not keep them from forming plans to "make assurance doubly sure" if possible.

Miller at Home

Barry Miller headquarters in Dallas issued a statement intended to counteract the claims of R. S. Sterling that other states had found the state highway bond program a success.

The lieutenant governor's supporters called attention to California which they said was noted throughout the nation for its good roads.

"California operates on a 'pay-as-you-go' basis through its gas-tax," they said. (Continued on Page 4)

125 WILL JOURNEY FROM PARISAREA TO SHORT COURSE

Special Train Will Leave
Parisarea At 7 o'clock
Next Sunday Morning

TWO LOCAL MEN ARE ON PROGRAM

County Agent Edmiston and Superintendent
Kyle to Make Talks

One hundred and twenty-five men, women, boys and girls from the Parisarea will leave for College Station Sunday morning to attend the annual farmers short course—which will be held the week of July 23 to August 2, according to A. L. Edmiston, county agent. Mr. Edmiston said Tuesday night that there would be 50 or more from Lamar county, with an equal number from Franklin county. He would go from Red River county while Delta county's quota will reach more than 40.

Mr. Edmiston said that some of the best-known agricultural workers of the state will be on the program at the short course. Every phase of agriculture will be discussed by competent authorities—and those who attend will have an opportunity to avail themselves of the information gained by the various experienced stations of A and M college, as well as the experience of agricultural workers throughout the state.

Included in the party going from Lamar county are five of the prominent bee-keepers of the county. While at College Station, they will study the latest methods of caring for and handling bees.

Mr. Edmiston in recognition of his outstanding work in permanent pasture improvement has been assigned a place on the program to discuss permanent pastures for Texas.

Delbert Kyle, county school superintendent, is also a representative of Lamar county on the short course program. Wednesday July 23, Mr. Kyle will discuss "Uniform Seventh Grade Examinations for the Rural Schools." Lamar county has gained recognition throughout the state for the last two years because of the success of the county-wide seventh grade examination and graduation program, which was inaugurated by Superintendent Kyle and carried out (Continued on Page Four)

SNAKE ENACTS CHIEF ROLE IN NECKTIE PARTY

Special to The News
CELESTE, July 22.—Last night just as Disputcher J. T. Manning took over the key and was in the act of copying a train order a snake measuring three feet dropped from the top of the switch board and in seeming affection entwined itself about the busy "lightning slinger's" neck.

Mr. Manning works as third shift man for the Katy-Santa-Fe tower and had just seated himself at the midnight hour when the incident occurred. He lost no time in "signing off," omitting the usual signature or other preliminaries and as soon as the member of the reptile family could be released the frightened operator reached for his 44-cal. and with two shots killed the unwelcome visitor.

The floor of the tower stands 25 feet from the ground and how the snake made its way to the building and secreted itself in the operator's switch board is a mystery.

Scores Drowned as Poontoon Bridge Falls as Celebration Evacuation of Rhineland

President Signs London Naval Pact; Now Await Britain, Japan Actions

WASHINGTON, July 22. (AP)—In the historic east room of the White House, President Hoover Tuesday signed the London naval treaty.

Ratification by Great Britain and Japan and the depositing of all three signatures in London remain to be accomplished to bring into full effect the covenant limiting for the first time all categories of fighting vessels for the great naval powers.

Earlier in the day, the chief executive had said in a statement that the treaty, ratified Monday by the senate, will "secure the full defense of the United States" and will lay "the foundation upon which further constructive reduction in world arms may be accomplished in the future."

"With the ratification by the other governments," Mr. Hoover said, "the treaty will translate an emotion deep in the hearts of millions of men and women into a practical fact of government and international relations. We should by this act of willingness to join with others in limiting armament, have dismissed from the mind of the world any notion that the United States entertains ideas of aggression, imperial or exploitation of foreign nations."

Four of the American delegates to the London conference, Vice-President Curtis and two members of the senate foreign relations committee, stood at the elbow of the chief executive as he affixed his signature to the treaty which has its beginning less than a year ago in a conference between himself and Prime Minister Mac-

FARMERS URGED TO HEAR COTTON MARKETING PLAN

Three Representatives of Coop Association Will Be Here Today

All Lamar county cotton growers who are interested in securing additional information about the co-operative cotton marketing plan of the Texas Cotton Cooperative Association are urged to be at a meeting which will be held at the court house Wednesday afternoon at 2:30. Beside L. E. Winter of the Dallas branch of the state association, two organization men will be present. F. A. Caperton of Vernon, who has been doing organization work for the association in south Texas, and G. L. Hicks of Dallas, who is assisting Mr. Caperton, arrived in Paris Tuesday evening.

Local business men are anxious that a representative number of Lamar cotton growers attend this meeting in order that those present may learn the attitude of the farmers toward the marketing association which is sponsored by the Federal government.

As has been previously stated, an individual farmer cannot secure aid from the Federal Farm Board, and the only way in which the Texas farmer can secure such aid is through the Texas Cotton Cooperative Association.

FORT WORTH YOUTH DROWNED IN LAKE

FORT WORTH, July 22. (AP)—A second victim of Fossick lake within the month, J. B. Autrey, 16, was drowned when a raft capsized and threw him into deep water Tuesday. The body was recovered by divers Tuesday afternoon, almost in the exact spot where the body of R. C. Blessing, 17, who was drowned July 4, was brought to the surface.

RAIN AND COOL BREEZES BRING SOME RELIEF

By the Associated Press
Suffering heavy casualties from rain storms which swept over most of the east yesterday, the armies of heat, humidity and drought took up a valiant last stand in Virginia and thereabouts after a campaign of several days that had brought suffering to nearly every part of the country.

Slowly losing out in the other heat sectors, where rain and cool breezes brought the temperatures down to normal summer averages, the torrid sun continued to beat down upon the valleys of Virginia, sending the mercury soaring above 100 for the fourth consecutive day. A temperature of 102.3 at Richmond was the hottest July day on record.

Eastern Pennsylvania, Maryland, New Jersey, New York and Connecticut where remnants of the wave continued to linger as the sun rose yesterday, got promised relief later in the day.

The rain was especially welcome to towns in western Maryland and Pennsylvania where the menace of water shortage and forest fires added to the discomfort.

Scores of deaths attributed directly to the heat had been chalked up in these regions in the last four days. In New York and its metropolitan area alone at least 53 fatalities occurred. Two more were reported yesterday in Virginia and four in Maryland.

Forty Bodies Had Been Re-

Tuesday Night

HINDENBURG WAS

Cries for Help Come from Darkness, As Black
Water Rushes On

COBLENZ, Germany, July 22. (AP)—Scores of persons were drowned Tuesday night in the collapse of a pontoon bridge here during the celebration of the evacuation of the Rhineland in which President Von Hindenburg had taken part. Forty bodies were recovered up to a late hour Tuesday night. About 100 persons were on the bridge when it crumbled.

An enormous crowd had gathered along the banks of the Rhine during the evening at the so-called "deutsches eck" where the Moselle river joins the Rhine.

They stood watching the fireworks and the illumination at the ancient castle of Ehrenbreitstein in honor of President Von Hindenburg's visit.

When the display was over, thousands of persons tramped across the pontoon bridge, which leads to a place known as "Security Harbor."

Suddenly, while about 100 persons were on the bridge, it collapsed under the strain of the unusual traffic. Those crossing were thrown into the water.

Many were killed by falling timbers, and others were swept away in the black, swirling water and drowned before help could reach them.

In the darkness, which lately had been intermittently illuminated by the fire works across the river people could be heard splashing about and crying for help.

Rescuers immediately launched boats, but many of the victims could not be located.

The city was thrown into consternation by the news of the disaster, which occurred shortly after 10:30 p. m.

President Von Hindenburg was informed of the disaster. It appeared doubtful whether he could continue his program of visits in the Rhineland. He was scheduled to go on to Treves and Aix-La-Chapelle.

Dredging operations were begun by torchlight to recover other bodies. When the Associated Press correspondent reached the scene about midnight, the bodies of 23 adults and of two children were stretched out on the grass bank.

WISCONSIN BANK IS ROBBED OF $100,000

HARTFORD, Wis., July 22. (AP)—Working with precision, three gunmen robbed the First National bank of Hartford of about $100,000 in negotiable securities and cash Tuesday after slugging Cashier R. W. Bailey and Elmo Place, a customer.

The men escaped in a sedan driven by a fourth man. They obtained approximately $15,000 in currency and $55,000 in securities.

INDIAN MOUNDS OF PARISAREA WILL YIELD LONG-KEPT SECRETS TO SCIENCE

Indian mounds in Lamar county are to yield their long-kept secrets of the modes of life, death and burial of the ancient inhabitants when excavations are begun here this week by a party from the department of anthropology of the University of Texas.

Many residents here have long known that this was a rich field for the scientist in the study of ancient man, but the university's party is the first to undertake the work in more than amateur fashion. Northeast Texas is a virgin field for the work, no scientific party ever having visited the Parisarea for the purpose before.

The group from the university is headed by H. B. Ramsaur, field foreman for Prof. J. E. Pearce, head of the university's school of anthropology, and he has with him two university students, John H. Davis and O. A. Hart, whom he will assist in the work.

Prof. Pearce was in Paris last fall for a day or two, with the intention of making a survey, but condition of the roads prevented this, and it was not until a few weeks ago, when he was again in this county, that he was able to

FARM NEWS OF THE WEEK

LADONIA FARMER MAKES PROFIT ON BERMUDA ONIONS

Delta County Man Will Grow More Truck
Next Year

LADONIA, July 22.—If there is any man in this section who is considered as "knowing his onions" it is Ira Vaughn who resides near here on the Ike Williams place. Becoming disgusted with low price cotton and cries of "over production" he set about to meet the issue as best he could. Instead of planting the entire place down in cotton he procured the consent of the land owner to let him experiment with onions. He planted a patch of white bermuda onions, recently was in town with a yield approximately of 200 bushels to the acre and retelling them at the rate of $1 per bushel. Now he regrets he did not plant more onions and less cotton.

His experiment did not end there. He was faithfully seeking something to combat low cotton prices and was not satisfied to plant onions alone. He also planted another patch to Irish potatoes. Here he found his yield equal to that of his onion experiment. He planted one bushel of seed potatoes and produced a yield at the rate of 20 bushels for the one bushel planted, he said. His potato crop found a ready market at $1 per bushel and he declares that he expects to make "money on the farm" next year. If he does, he says, it will be the first time in all of his farming experience.

The reason Vaughn "knows his onions" is from the fact that next year will find him with increased acreage in onions and potatoes and a great reduction in cotton.

She Lost 19 Pounds of Fat in 27 Days

During October a woman in Montana wrote: "My first bottle of Kruschen Salts lasted almost 4 weeks and during that time I lost 19 pounds of fat—Kruschen is all you claim for it—I feel better than I have for years."

Here's the recipe that blazes fat and brings into blossom all the natural attractiveness that every woman possesses.

Every morning take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water before breakfast—do not overeat—walk a little each day.

Be sure and do this every morning for "it's the little daily dose that takes off the fat."—Don't miss a morning. The Kruschen habit means that every particle of poisonous waste matter and harmful acids and gases are expelled from the system.

At the same time the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels are toned up and the pure, fresh blood containing nature's six life-giving salts is carried to every organ, gland, nerve and fibre of the body and this is followed by "that Kruschen feeling" of energetic health and activity that is reflected in bright eyes, clear skin, cheerful vivacity and charming figure.

If you want to lose fat with speed get an 85c bottle of Kruschen Salts from the Palace Drug store or any live drugstore anywhere in America with the distinct understanding that you must be satisfied with results or money back.—Adv.

EXTRA COCKERELS
MAY BE CAPONIZED

Capons fatten easier and at less cost, says the New York state college of agriculture. Male birds not sold as broilers, or otherwise used, may be caponized if they are to be held over. Market quotations on capons usually begin in November and are several cents a pound more than those for cockerels, especially for the holiday trade.

When successfully caponized the bird does not have the appearance of a cockerel. The comb and wattles do not develop and the saddle and hack feathers grow long. Caponizing a bird makes him more quiet and peaceful, and causes the flesh to retain the fine flavor and texture of broiler meat. Capons will stand closer confinement than cockerels.

Breeds used for capons depend on the market demands. For the production of large capons, Orpingtons, Light Brahmas and Jersey Black Giants are satisfactory; for smaller capons any of the American breeds, such as Plymouth Rock, Wyandottes, and Rhode Island Reds are adaptable. Leghorns, doubtful weather it pays to caponize them.

Cockerels selected for caponizing should be about 8 to 10 weeks old and weigh about 1 1/2 to 2 lbs. Caponizing demands skill, and it is advisable to watch an experienced operator. Cornell has an illustrated bulletin, E 143, on capon production, which may be obtained by applying to the office of publications, New York state college of agriculture, Ithaca, New York.

KEEP WATERERS CLEAN DURING SUMMER SEASON

During the summer months it is very easy to neglect the waterers and feeders. As the chicks approach maturity, it becomes constantly easier for them to step in and roost upon the waterers and feeders. This increases danger of contamination. Disease also is spread by the working in of dirt and filth from the floor or ground, into the waterers and feeders. This danger can be lessened considerably by keeping clean feed and water before the chicks at all times and by placing the feeders and waterers so that chicks will not mix in the dirt.

DRY HENHOUSE FLOOR

E. L. Dakan, head poultryman at Ohio state university, is practical. Last year when it became necessary to put up a new poultry house at the university, Dakan decided to make the floor just like most farmers would do it. In other words, they leveled off the soil as best they could, first making sure that the floor was higher than the outside surface. Then they put down a two-inch layer of concrete. And all last winter this proved to be one of the driest of the poultry house floors.

KILL RED MITES

Red mites can be controlled more easily by starting early than if hot weather comes before we start, says R. L. Cochran, Iowa, state college poultryman. In warm weather the mites multiply very rapidly and are hard to rid of. They can live for months without food and live by sucking blood. It is certain they will stunt or kill young chickens and stop hens from laying. Four days after the female mite lays her egg it hatches and the young mite starts his career.

LIME FOR HEN YARD

If it has not already been done, every bare poultry yard should be limed and plowed or spaded at once—and kept under cultivation for several weeks if possible. There is some difference of opinion as to the value of air-slaked lime as a soil disinfectant, but it is pretty sure to prove an advantage to any crops that may be planted. Frequent stirring of the soil helps greatly in preventing or reducing disease contamination, so crops that can be cultivated are best.

Cotton Crop Is About On Par With Last Year

The condition of the cotton crop in Lamar and adjoining counties is almost equal to this time last year, according to reports from farmers throughout the Paria area. Although the plants are smaller, it is the general opinion there are more more than at this time last year. However, there are fewer matured bolls than a year ago. Cotton has begun shedding considerably since the latter part of last week. Farmers report that the greater part of the shedding is due to dry weather rather than to any damage from insect infestation. It is the general opinion that through out greater portion of the Paria area, a rain would greatly enhance the prospects for a good yield of cotton, though those sections of the county which have had rain recently would probably not be benefited by more. There has been much less damage from root rot this year than usual. Many farmers attribute this to the lack of rain during the latter part of the growing season. On the average, the corn crop will be less than that of last year, which was short. Grain sorghums are making a rapid growth, and that which was planted early, has already matured a good crop of grain. The watermelon and cantaloupe crop is estimated to be shorter than usual. However, both these crops are being received daily. The quality is good, and the yield depends on the weather for the remainder of the growing season. Truck crops and gardens are practically all suffering from the continued dry weather. It is the general opinion of farmers that a good rain within the next few days would benefit all crops, though cotton would probably shed forms even faster than now.

FARMS TO MAKE GREATER PROFITS

Fair Official Says That Farmers Will Owe Less
This Year

Despite the decline in the prices of certain staple crops of Texas, farmers of this state are going to find themselves in better shape after harvest than they have been in many years. This is the prediction of J. A. Moore, superintendent of agriculture at the State Fair of Texas, who has recently completed a tour of sections of the state.

"Farmers are going to get less money for their crops," Mr. Moore said, "but taking the state as a whole, farmers are going to weather good crops, and when they have made their harvest, sold their crops, they are going to find that they don't owe all the money that they have secured. The bankers have not loaned as much money as usual on the crops of this state."

The wheat crop in the Panhandle section of the state has been fair.

Prices are lower. Cotton in South Texas is in good shape. The early vegetable crops have been normal and above. Fruits and tomatoes of East Texas are above par. However, there is hardly one of these commodities where the price is on a level with that of last year and the year before.

"Agriculture in 1936, with all of the low prices," Mr. Moore said, "is on a safer basis than at any time during the last fifteen years. The program of the average farm is on a much more constructive basis. The farmer is thinking in more intelligent terms. He is raising more food for his family and more feed for his livestock. He is growing more varieties of food and feed—palatable and wholesome for both his family and his stock."

"There is less speculation on the farm this year in Texas than I remember ever seeing. The farmer has his money crop, but at the same time, if this fails, he has food for his family and feed for his livestock."

Farmers as a whole in Texas will sell their farm products at a profit. They will do this because they have produced their crops this year more economically. The agricultural situation in Texas is settling down to a question of a comfortable, safe living on the farm. When they set this, then the farmer is ready to branch out into his money crop.

More Pay Days
"The farmer has finally realized that it is not economically sound to work all the year and to have but one pay day each year. They are working to the end of creating more pay days and, with more poultry, more dairy products and other salable farm items, they can increase the pay days from one to fifty-two each year. Farmers in every section of the state are doing this very thing this year."

"The decline in prices has only hit two major crops particularly hard—wheat and cotton. The price of wool has also hurt some, but I have found that with this facing the farmers they are still going to be better off than for a number of years."

Cotton Growing Well at Rosalie

Special to The News
ROSALIE, July 22.—Although the weather continues dry, farmers here are of the opinion that cotton is growing better than it was a few days ago. Feed crops are badly damaged and melons and cantaloupes are below the average for this time of the year. All crops are needing rain.

FARM CROPS FAR FROM RUIN; SOME DAMAGE IS DONE

Drought Spread From Rockies To Atlantic;
Cotton Is Fruiting

By Frank L. Weller
Associated Press Farm Editor
WASHINGTON, July 22. (P)—Farm crops were described Tuesday by department of agriculture economists as far from being ruined, although they have been damaged, although they have been damaged from the Rockies to the Atlantic. The drought's chief danger now, they said, lay in the possibility of its continuing into the critical growing stage of three great staples—spring wheat, corn and cotton.

Spring wheat was believed to have been saved from serious deterioration by an inch of rain that fell in Canada and the American Northwest just when the grain was beginning to head and the kernels shrivel. Additional rains are needed.

Corn, probably facing the heaviest loss of all, is estimated by a semi-official source to have had 50,000,000 bushels lopped off the prospective yield. Heat and drought have been severe in the Ohio valley and the south Atlantic states.

Farmers in the corn belt have been driven from their fields by the heat and fatalities have been heavy among work animals. Only the summer of 1901 exceeded the heat in Missouri, but it was not so disastrous to crops. The drought in Indiana has been the worst in 23 years.

In all small grain areas the crops have been damaged, particularly oats in the middle west and grain sorghums in the southwest. The heat, however, has brought benefits to offset in part the damages. Where it has not been so badly rolled up as in parts of Ohio, corn has grown well. Weeds have been kept down, and the fields cultivated to a point favorable for a quick recovery when rain comes.

Except in southern Texas where some cotton is shedding, dry weather evils have been counterbalanced by benefits to the south's great cash crop. In many sections cotton is fruiting and needs dry weather and farmers generally have been able to eliminate the boll weevil with dust that rainfall often makes ineffective.

Cotton is not as near the critical stage as corn and spring wheat, and while it has been badly hurt in regions, economists say the crop will give a good accounting of itself with rain.

Barbers Meet
DALLAS, July 22. (P)—An appeal to barbers to remove their profession from association with the "treatment of baldness" idea was made at the annual convention of the Texas Association of Master Barbers here Monday by Jule Gordon of Des Moines, Ia., editor of the Square Deal.

Hair tonic has its legitimate uses, he said, but growing hair on heads is not one of them.

Improved Pastures Lower Cost of Feeding Livestock

BEAUMONT, July 22.—How improved pastures support more livestock and cheapen the cost of production is well illustrated in two demonstrations in the permanent pasture program of Jefferson county. Ten acres of pasture land seeded to clover and grasses on the farm of Ed Rake are supporting 15 head of horses and calves and 35 head of sheep, and the grazing is growing better all the time, according to J. F. Combs, county agent. This land, which is a heavy black and gray soil formerly used for rice, will ordinarily support only one horse or cow to every four to eight acres, Combs says.

An eight-acre pasture featured by clovers has given rich grazing to 14 head of dairy cows on the farm of another demonstrator, Ben Ronkema, and resulted in an increase of seven gallons of milk per day at the same time reducing the grain ration by four pounds. Mr. Ronkema figures that the pasture has been worth 22 cents per cow per day to him, or $6.60 per cow per month since the middle of May.

In the better pastures work in Jefferson county the seed has been scattered directly onto the sod without harrowing or plowing, and results were better than where breaking was done. Mr. Combs declares. Among the clovers used are hop, black medic, white Dutch bur and several others. Hop clover has done especially well, seems adapted to all local soil types, and is adapted to acid soils. It furnishes winter and spring pasture varieties of lespedeza. The cost of seeding the pasture on Mr. Rake's farm was $3.20 per acre, but this cost was doubled, it is said, by using an unnecessarily large number of clovers and grasses.

BEAUTY CULTURE SCHOOL PLANNED

N. O. Enloe, owner of the Shur-Shave Barber shop on South Main street, said Tuesday that on or about September 15 he would open a school for beauty culture. He thought the field here was ripe for such a venture. Mr. Enloe has been in the barber business in Paris for the past nineteen years and has been in the same location during the entire time. He was among the first to install a beauty shop in Paris.

REPORTER TELLS OF CRIME PROBE TO GRAND JURY

Brundidge Testifies of Al- leged Racketeering of Other Reporters

CHICAGO, July 22. (P)—The grand jury listened for nearly three hours Tuesday to a St. Louis crime reporter's account of his investigation of alleged racketeering on the part of his Chicago brothers in the profession.

When Harry T. Brundidge emerged from the jury chamber telling his story, all lips were sealed.

Brundidge reiterated that he would not repeat his testimony even to his own newspaper, although Frank W. Taylor, Jr., managing editor of the St. Louis Star was in the jury room part of the time with Brundidge. State's attorney John A. Swanson, and his assistant, William A. Rittenhouse, who participated in the grand jury hearing, said they were forbidden by law to make public any of the proceedings, and the jury foreman said it had been agreed nothing should be made public.

Whether any Chicago newspapermen would be subpoenaed as a result of the testimony Tuesday was not indicated, and Swanson had already said he had no evidence to present in connection with the murder of Alfred J. Lingle, Tribune reporter. Brundidge was called because of a series of articles in which he wrote that reporters other than Lingle were involved in gangland affairs here.

The latest gangland execution, that of Peter Inserra Monday night apparently had gone the way of the rest Tuesday—an unsolved homicide. "Ashcan Pete's" saloon had been closed for a month and during that time, police said, was understood to have formed some alliance with the Alamo-Moran liquor syndicate, charged by some with the slaying of Lingle.

Barbers to Meet In Waco In 1931

DALLAS, July 22. (P)—Electing C. B. Trueter of San Antonio president and choosing Waco as the 1931 convention city, the fourth annual gathering of the Texas Association of Master Barbers closed here Tuesday. Trueter succeeded J. B. Robinson of Dallas. Other officers elected were: Lee Holmsback, Dallas, first vice president; F. E. Langston, Ranger, second vice president; A. L. Lewis, Houston, third vice president; J. E. Stringfellow, Waco, fourth vice president; C. W. Robertson, Austin, secretary-treasurer; and Rev. H. A. Seymour, San Antonio, chaplain.

Waco, Houston and Port Arthur were lively contestants for choice as the convention city, and a "run-off" between Port Arthur and Waco was necessary.

The convention adopted a resolution favoring holding a joint con-

IOWA DEMOCRATS SEEK REGULATION OF LIQUOR SALES

Definition of Intoxicating Beverages Wanted By State Convention

DES MOINES, Ia., July 22. (P)—State regulation of the sale of liquor with a new definition of intoxicating beverages was recommended by Iowa democrats in state convention Tuesday as a remedy for what their platform termed a "nation-wide scandal" of prohibition enforcement.

Voting down a motion to omit all reference to prohibition in their platform, the delegates adopted a plank asking "prompt legislative action to ascertain the will of the voters for retaining the eighteenth amendment, repealing it, or revising it as the voters shall decide."

The plank was regarded as a compromise in view of the action by the second district caucus asking repeal of the Volstead act and that of the eighth district opposing modification or repeal.

The platform also assailed the Hawley-Smoot tariff, opposed the state primary election law and a proposed state income tax, and criticized republican farm relief measures.

The prohibition plank, approved despite a scolding dissent, charged that "the republican party had failed to devise and put into operation any plan of effective enforcement." It set forth a list of alleged evils growing out of this, and asked a law "defining intoxicating beverages according to a reasonable non-intoxicating standard of alcoholic content based upon the opinions of physicians and scientists."

It also asked the enactment of a law giving states the right "to forbid or restrict the sale or consumption of beverages not prohibited by the proposed new definition of intoxicants."

EXCHANGE CLUB BARBECUE HELD

About 100 Present At Tuesday Evening Meet At Lake Crook

The Paris Exchange club was host Tuesday evening to the families and friends of the members, with about one hundred people in attendance. Barbecued chicken with all the accompaniments was served at Lake Crook, with a barrel of lemonade and several hot Dixie cups as an afterpiece to the dinner.

This is an annual affair for the Exchange club, and one that all members look forward to. In addition to other invited guests Tuesday evening there were five members of the Dallas Exchange club present, including President Roy Kyle of the Dallas club. This party was headed by Gene McCullough, former Paris resident and member of the local Exchange club, including Mr. McCullough and President Kyle the other Dallasites present were Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Mauldin, William C. Vogel and Dr. Wm. Deatherage.

After dinner was over Ben Moore, president of the Paris Exchange club, introduced Gene McCullough, who in turn introduced the Dallas visitors, all of whom made brief remarks. Messrs. Kyle and Deatherage were present last year at the annual meeting held at Lake Crook, and knew what to expect.

The Dallas Exchange club has been in the nature of a foster father to the Paris club, and has helped it in every way possible since its reorganization. Last year Dallas sent about ten members to Paris and President Kyle expressed regret that the whole Dallas club could not be present Tuesday evening.

Mr. Kyle is head of the advertising department for W. A. Green & Co. of Dallas and Mr. Vogel is connected with the Vogel-Bracken Printing Co., hence both know the value of publicity and good advertising and they did some of it for the Paris club during the evening.

President Kyle is desirous of organizing an Exchange club at Greenville, and President Moore at the close of the talks, named Ray Hutt, Ed Castleberry, Carl Walther and H. B. Wright as a committee to go into the proposition with Mr. Kyle.

LAST PRACTICES FOR CUP MATCHES

Americans and French Play Slambang Tennis Before Friday Play

PARIS, July 22. (P)—Tennis of the slambang variety was indulged in Tuesday by both American and French Davis cup teams in the last practice matches before the challenge round on Friday.

Big Bill Tilden, bad ankle and all, defeated George Lott, his singles mate, 6-3, 6-5, 6-4. Henri Cochet, ace of the cup defending squad, wiped up the courts with Christian Bousaus, youthful Frenchman.

Both Number One's, Tilden and Cochet, took chances on stroking, which while producing a maximum of errors, provided some remarkable placements.

"What a pity there is so much at stake in the Davis cup that the players can not afford to take such chances" was the regret of about 1,000 spectators who had paid to watch the practice. Amateur tennis is taking a leaf out of the professional book, charging ten francs—forty cents—for the privilege of witnessing the training.

Besides the Tilden-Lott and Cochet-Bousaus matches, Wilmer Allison and John Van Ryn, American doubles combination, played five sets against the professionals Martin Plaa and Karel Kozeluh. Johnny Doeg and Gregory Mangin

TALK TO GANDHI ABOUT 'PEACE'

Go To Jail To See If Can Bring About Cessation of Campaign

BOMBAY, India, July 22. (P)—All India Tuesday night awaited with interest the outcome of a private interview in the Yeroda jail at Poona Wednesday between two envoys of the congress and Mahatma Gandhi, leader of the campaign of civil disobedience against British rule.

The two Hindu statesmen arrived in Poona Tuesday night from Bombay, according to advices, and were prepared to see the "Holy One" in his prison quarters without the attendance of any other persons. It was predicted the interview might occupy a long time.

Before their departure from Bombay the leader of the two, Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru, said he had no idea how long the conversation with the nationalist leader would last. He agreed with his companion, Mr. Jayakar, that it might take half an hour or two days.

After seeing the Mahatma Sapru and Jayakar planned to go to Allahabad to interview similarly Pandit Motilal Nehrū and Pandit Jawaharlal Nehrū. Their object is to obtain views regarding cessation of the civil resistance program.

From Allahabad the pair will return to Simla, there to meet viceroy Lord Irwin.

No great optimism was felt in any quarters Tuesday night regarding the outcome of the Gandhi interview. The general feeling among observers of the progress of the congress movement was that at any rate no harm would be done, and in the present straits any straw must be clutched at that would seem to help India and her people out of their predicament.

Continue Quiz Of Virginian In Girl's Death

WASHINGTON, July 22. (P)—The tangled stories of Herbert M. Campbell held the attention of police Tuesday night as they continued to question the Virginia real estate man, the last person to come under arrest on a charge of killing Mary Baker.

Commonwealth attorney William C. Gloth, of Arlington county Virginia, announced Tuesday night that Campbell's revolver, with which bureau of standards experts say the young navy department clerk was slain last April, will be taken under guard to Chicago for reexamination by Major Calvin Goddard, ballistic expert who testified in the Hall-Mills case.

Gloth said he did not doubt the testimony of Washington experts, but that police authorities who already have arrested eight men during the past three months in connection with the crime wanted to be "doubly sure." The prisoner was quoted by police Monday night as saying the gun never had been out of his possession.

The program included a song "Let Others See Jesus in You," a prayer by Mrs. C. E. Reeves; scripture reading, Ephesians 6, by Mrs. Joe Harrison; an inspirational address by the pastor, the Rev. J. R. Ward; a reading by Miss Sarah Stephenson and an historical record by Mrs. J. C. White.

During the social hour, cream and cake were served for refreshment, by members of the circle.

Abiding Christ Is Sermon Topic

At the First Baptist church Sunday morning, the choir rendered a beautiful anthem, "My Faith Looks Up to Thee" by Pearls, and Dr. W. M. Wright, the pastor, preached the sermon, taking for his subject, "The Abiding Christ."

"When Jesus gave the great commission to his disciples who include you and me, he told us to go to the uttermost parts of the earth, and he added, 'For I am with thee, even to the end.'"

"I wish I had the power this morning to make us realize the abiding presence of the Lord Jesus Christ. He is with us in the hour of loneliness, in the dark hour of sorrow, and he will be with us whenever we call on him to be with us."

"Humanity needs sympathy and unless those of us who love our Lord and Savior can offer this sympathy to the teeming millions who do not know him, there will be no sympathy love for them because there is no sympathy without substitution and the person who knows not Christ as his personal Savior has a poor chance of loving his fellow-man, and being able to mingle his tears of sorrow with his."

"Jesus is with us in the loneliness of death and if we could only go to the day of death in family groups, we would be more happy, we think. But if we would just take Christ into our lives and let Him reign supreme, then we would not need to be sorrowful about a loved one who had died, because we would know that he is not dead but sleeping, and that we would be with him again in that day that cometh by and by."

At the evening service a quartet composed of Earl Dale, Chas. Capell, W. L. Crain, and W. W. West, sang, "Jesus, Savior, Friend of Sinners," and Dr. Wright spoke on "Freedom Forever."

Mrs. Ada DeWitt is able to be back at her post in the district clerk's office.

Box 10, well known and prominent citizen in Wichita Falls. Mr. Maloney made this statement while talking to the Argotane representative in Allison's Drug store.

"For a long time I've suffered with stomach trouble and indigestion," he continued "gas would form on my stomach and affect my heart and I could not lie down and did not get any rest at all at night. There's been many a day when I couldn't work from such misery I was in. I was very nervous and couldn't rest all the time and couldn't hardly eat anything I had to be very careful of what I ate."

"While talking with an engineer Denison, Tex., he advised me to take Argotane saying that it had relieved him of a serious condition and so I decided to try it. I am sure thankful that he told me about it for I am not bothered with indigestion any more, gas does not form and the soreness is gone out of my stomach and it won't be long until I can eat the things I care for. I can keep right on with my work now, and am gaining in every way. Argotane has been a help to me and I could tell the difference after the first few doses. I am glad to recommend Argotane to my fellow sufferers who are troubled like I was for it does what they say it will."

line tax and license fee revenues," the statement said. "If once tried bond issues to the extent of $62,000,000 rather than $350,000,000, but with the adoption of a license fee and gasoline tax system finds no need for bonds."

"B. B. Meek, in charge of highway work in California, last winter made a speech to Rotarians urging them to fight any attempt to issue any more bonds. Later, in conversation with a prominent Dallasite, Mr. Meek explained that he found it absolutely impossible to find enough capable engineers and to build up capable organization sufficiently large to spend more money than was provided by the gas tax and license fee revenues."

Miller spoke Tuesday afternoon at Granbury and Tuesday night at Hillsboro. Sterling was in far South Texas, campaigning the Rio Grande valley in the vicinity of Raymondville in the morning, speaking at Harlingen in the afternoon, and going to Corpus Christi for an address there Tuesday night.

To Welcome Sterling
At Houston plans were being made to welcome him to his home city with a giant rally Wednesday night. Sterling said that he left his home station more than a month ago with enough votes there to assure him of a place in the runoff.

Since then practically all of his leading opponents have invaded his home city, the last being Senator Clint Small, who spoke there Tuesday night.

An atmosphere of confidence, but not over-confidence pervaded Sterling's Dallas headquarters. Charlie Abbott disparaged claims of Sterling's opponents that he reached his peak late last week and was slipping. "Sterling started campaigning so late that he may not reach his peak even by Saturday," Abbott said, "but he will be high enough to qualify for the run off."

Small Optimistic
Small was assertively more optimistic than usual as he conferred with supporters at Houston Tuesday. The warm reception which he said was given his speech in Dallas Monday night was responsible for his feeling.

"By the large number of people who crowded around to shake my hand after the speaking and to wish me success, I almost thought I was in West Texas," he said. Small's supporters said his talks were so convincing that he was making votes everywhere he appeared.

Love Confident
Thomas B. Love reported that his talks at Paris and Clarksville Monday attracted larger crowds than had been drawn to hear any other candidate in those cities this year.

"This race is already won; there is no question about it," Love said. He was scheduled at Sulphur Springs Tuesday afternoon and at Mineola at night.

"Jim" at Athens
James E. Ferguson, was in Athens Tuesday afternoon and at Corsicana at night. Ferguson was speaking for his wife, Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, nearly all of whose opponents concede her a place in the runoff.

Say Mayfield Gains
Earl Z. Crowder, one of the leading Mayfield supporters in Dallas, said that he former United States senator had gained a tremendous amount of strength the last three or four days.

"Only in the last week or ten days have the people taken any interest in the election and reports from all sections of the state indicate we are making wonderful progress," Crowder said. "I think Mr. Mayfield will be in the runoff with Mrs. Ferguson."

A North Texas rally for Mayfield is planned for Dallas Wednesday night. Persons attending the state retail grocers' convention and Mayfield delegations from several counties in the vicinity of Dallas are expected to hear the candidates.

Mayfield spoke over radio station KTAT at Fort Worth Tuesday morning and will speak again over the same station from 8 to 8:30 Wednesday morning. He was booked for speeches in Ennis and Midlothian Tuesday.

Young Gaining
Jim Young headquarters Tuesday exhibited letters reporting on Young's strength in three of the state's "extreme" in location. Mrs. Clara D. Jacell Sevier, Democratic National committee member, writing from Corpus Christi, prophesied that the former congressman would carry New Mexico county.

William Stoddard wired from Clint, El Paso county that the voters were leaving Small, Love and Sterling every day and "it seemed that El Paso county was safe for Young."

J. L. Wheeler of Texasland said the Young forces were "holding" there notwithstanding a "terrific" Sterling onslaught.

Delegations from several North-east Texas counties came to Dallas Tuesday night to hear Young speak there. It was almost a homecoming for Young as a large number of former Kaufman county residents live in Dallas.

Donald at the Presidential camp in Virginia.

Flanking Mr. Hoover on the right and left stood Secretary Stimson and Secretary Adams, both delegates to the conference. About him were grouped the Vice-President, Senators Robinson, Democrat, Arkansas, and Reed, Republican, Pennsylvania, two other delegates to the conference, Chairman Borah of the senate foreign relations committee and Senator Swanson of Virginia, ranking Democrat on the committee.

The other three delegates of this country, Ambassadors Davies, Morrow and Gibson, were unable to be present at the ceremony, but to them were transmitted the personal congratulations of the president at the adoption by this country of the treaty which they helped negotiate.

In signing the treaty, Mr. Hoover used the same gold pen used by the American representatives in signing the covenant at London. He was dressed in white flannel trousers and a blue double-breasted coat.

As Mr. Hoover entered the east room in which a year ago he signed the Kellogg-Briand pact for outlawing war, powerful klieg lights beat upon him, and the ballroom floor was strewn with the signatures of the talking picture operators.

The chief executive seated himself at the table and attached his signature, which was attested by Secretary Stimson, as the cameras clicked. The President then repeated a few words from his statement of the morning and shook hands with the group about him. He was halted to repeat the ceremony for the newspaper photographers.

The entire ceremony lasted less than five minutes.

visit prospective sites for excavation.

Prof. Pearce is regarded as an authority on the subject of Texas anthropology and is the author of a number of articles on his researches and those of other scientists in various parts of the state.

While older residents here tell of numerous large mounds, many of them grown over in timber, many such man-made eminences have been destroyed by cultivation, and with them, the pottery, skeletal remains, and various implements which tell the anthropologist in eloquent detail, the life story of the ancient tribes which inhabited this portion of the country.

Northeast Texas was the prehistoric home of the Caddo tribes, which so far as can be determined, were intermediates of the Mississippi valley mound builders and of the plains tribes, as the articles, such as stone implements, shell ornaments and bone instruments, partake of the characteristics of both.

Lack of scientific identification and information about the mounds makes statements as to their age and purposes largely surmise; the university's party is here to discover the true nature of these, and to establish definite facts as to their origin and nature, insofar as possible.

Plans are made for excavating in various parts of Lamar county and the Paris area where the sites are most promising of results. Mounds and traces of others are known to exist all along the Red river and tributary streams in Fannin, Lamar and Red River counties, as well as in Delta and other counties to the South and East.

The evidences of past civilization in this part of Texas are much like those found in profusion in the southwestern part of Arkansas, and the university party's findings should prove an important link in tracing the westward trend of this cultural development of ancient man.

Inmate of Travis County Poor Farm Dead; Another Is Sought

AUSTIN, July 22. (P)—Officials of Travis and adjoining counties were searching Tuesday night for a man wanted in connection with the slaying of J. H. McKiken, who died Tuesday afternoon from a fractured skull, received, authorities said, during a quarrel with the fugitive.

Both the men were inmates of the Travis county poor farm and had been companions for several years. McKiken was 75, and the other man was 72.

The altercation was said to have started when the men had a dispute over occupancy of a chair. McKiken was struck a blow with a cane, and his skull was fractured. The man who struck McKiken fled.

Officers indicated a murder charge would be filed against the man who killed McKiken.

'NIGHT RIDERS' ARE ARRESTED

21 of 23 Beckham County Oklahoma Men Wanted Are Taken

ERICK, Okla., July 22. (P)—With 21 of 23 alleged "night riders" in his custody, George F. Long, deputy United States Marshal, left here late Tuesday for Oklahoma City where the men, including two Beckham county peace officers, will be arraigned before a United States commissioner.

The arrested men were charged with conspiracy to violate the rights guaranteed citizens under the constitution, in connection with race troubles here more than a week ago when negroes of the community were forced to leave their homes for safety following the killing of Mrs. Henry Vaughn, former Erick girl, near Shamrock, Texas.

Long arrived in Erick Monday night but did not make any arrests until Tuesday. Two men, charged with the group, were arrested. It was reported here they had fled to Amarillo, Texas.

The officer arrested M. Y. Baker county under sheriff, who succeeded M. L. Inman, acting sheriff since the murder of C. H. Phillips last month, and C. T. Calvert, city marshal of Erick, and 18 others.

Charges were filed against the men last week by Roy St. Lewis, United States district attorney at Oklahoma City, after a delegation of Erick citizens had conferred with Lewis. The citizens alleged laxity on the part of state officials who they said, had taken no action against members of the mob which caused a general exodus of negroes from the Erick community.

None of the negroes had returned to their homes Tuesday night to live.

Avert Strike
DUBLIN, July 22. (P)—Through government intervention, a general strike ordered for midnight on the Great Southern Railway lines, which would have paralyzed rail communication over most of the Irish free state, was averted late Tuesday.

The Paris party will leave over the Santa Fe at 7:00 o'clock Sunday morning July 27, and will return Saturday August 2.

A number of people from Delta county are buying their tickets in Paris to take advantage of the round-trip fare from this point.

DETROIT MAYOR RECALL LOOMS

Mayor Bowles Concedes He Loses; Will Run Again Shortly

DETROIT, July 22. (P)—Recall of Mayor Charles Bowles in Tuesday election was conceded at 10:25 o'clock Tuesday night by John Gillespie, commissioner of public works and manager of the mayor's campaign.

With 750 out of 552 precincts reported, the count stood: 98,667 for the recall and 72,586 against. The majority for the recall was 26,081.

As the result of Tuesday's election the mayor becomes a candidate for the office at another election to be held within 30 days.

This election will be the third in which Bowles has campaigned for the office in nine months. He was selected last November by a majority of approximately 8,500 after a campaign in which he was supported by the Anti-Saloon League and similar organizations as a "reform candidate."

Tuesday's election was the first in the history of the city, or of any municipality of its population class, in which a mayor was subjected to a recall fight.

The campaign on the recall was the briefest ever held here, starting two weeks ago when the state supreme court declined to consider charges by the mayor and his supporters that the names on the petitions asking for the election were fraudulent.

The recall proponents made charges that the mayor had "tolerated lawlessness"; that he had impaired efficiency by dismissal of faithful public servants; and that Gillespie is a "lobbyist and politician" and unfit for the office he holds.

They also attacked the administration of the municipally owned Detroit street railway under Bowles, particularly his dismissal of Frank Couzens, son of U. S. Senator Couzens, who had opposed Bowles when the latter had sought to raise fares and had attacked the method of awarding insurance contracts.

Four Gangsters Are Electrocuted

TRENTON, N. J., July 22. (P)—Frank McBrien, notorious gangster known as "the Jersey kid," and three of his companions were electrocuted Tuesday night for the murder of George B. Lee, paymaster of the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey. The last man was pronounced dead at 8:38 p. m.

Victor Giampietro, who had hoped until the last for a reprieve, was the first to go. McBrien, Joseph Malanza and Joseph Rado followed quickly, and all were dead within 28 minutes. It was the second time in the history of New Jersey four persons were executed at one time.

Officials of Amtorg Say Do Not Take Part in Political Activity

NEW YORK, July 22. (P)—The president and vice president of the Amtorg Trading Corporation, which spends more than $1,000,000 in the United States every year, testified Tuesday that although Amtorg, an American corporation, was directed by the Soviet government it took no part in communistic or other political activities.

In fact, Peter A. Bogdanov, the president, was so adverse even to talking about politics that he could only be prodded into answering certain questions with the intimation that if he continued to refuse he would be considered in contempt of the special congressional committee questioning him.

Marketing methods were discussed, as well as the East Texas poultry show which will be held here during Thanksgiving week.

LADONIA TEACHER MOVES TO DALLAS

LADONIA, July 22.—After serving a term of twelve years as teacher in the Ladonia High school, Mrs. Blanche Cain handed in her resignation Monday. She is moving to Dallas.

DETROIT, July 22. (P).—Phillip Joseph Reid, for 22 years managing editor of the Detroit Free Press, died suddenly Monday night from effects of the heat. He had been in poor health for more than four years. He was 65 years old.

Pampa, Texas, July 13, 1930.

To my friends and acquaintances of Paris and Lamar county:

Next Saturday you are going to cast your ballot for the future governor of the State of Texas, and having been personally acquainted with Candidate Clint C. Small, I thought I would give you the benefit of my knowledge of him.

This man is an efficient and capable official, economical in his administrative affairs, fearless, unbiased and unprejudiced. He has no political alliances and will come nearer expelling from the governor's office political strife which has beset the governor's office of our state for the past many years, and give to Texas that business administration that it has sought for so long.

You will make no mistake in supporting this man, and I commend him to you.

Yours very truly,

The Chewing Gum LAXATIVE No Taste But the Most Effective Like Gum

The Big Pond At Plaza Thursday

He was a Parisian singer in "Innocents of Paris". He was a prince of hearts in "The Love Parade". He was a comedian in "Paramount on Parade". And now, in his latest starring picture, "The Big Pond", Maurice Chevalier plays the role of an impoverished French nobleman who comes to America and takes up a business career in a great big way. And what's more, he turns out to be a rip-roaring success, helping his prospective and belligerent father-in-law to keep the American people chewing gum conscious.

But there's a reason for Chevalier's frantic, ambitious business tactics. And the reason is Claudette Colbert the daughter of the "Chewing Gum King". Chevalier wants to prove to her and to her father (who is opposed to his daughter marrying a foreigner), that he can make business with romance. And he proves his point although not as easily and quickly as he imagined. For in his desire to make money he temporarily forgets to remain the ardent lover, a fact which disappoints Claudette and of course, pleases her father. But Chevalier, after all is said and done, is a pretty romantic fellow and it takes more than money and chewing gum to make him forget that it is Claudette whom he wants more than anything else in the world. The entire motif of this picture is romantically gay with Chevalier and Miss Colbert romping through one merry scene after the other with evident enthusiasm.

In "The Big Pond", Chevalier sings two new songs, "You Brought a New Kind of Love to Me" and "Livin' in the Sunlight—Lovin' in the Moonlight". Both of these numbers are particularly tuneful and suit the Chevalier temperament to perfection.

In support of Chevalier and Miss Colbert is a good cast headed by George Barbier, the well known New York stage actor who plays the irate father, Marion Ballou, Frank Lyon and Elaine Koch, a charming child actress.

"The Big Pond" will be presented at the Plaza theatre Thursday and Friday.

MULTIPLIERS OF JOBS

THE makers and unmakers of jobs hold a convention in Detroit; they are the mechanical engineers. They confess the charge of unmaking jobs. "We have been responsible in some measure," said one of the officials of their society, "for throwing men out of employment for the past 140 years. The extent of their influence is indicated by the fact that the convention of their national organization was attended by about 500 delegates coming from every part of the country.

The efforts of the mechanical engineer were not well understood or highly appreciated in the beginning. When he made a machine to spin and weave cotton, he was not popular with the folks who made a living by spinning and weaving by the old, slow hand processes.

But gradually it came to be understood that the invention which threw some workers out of employment made jobs for many workers. The motor car displaced the buggy factories. But thousands were employed in making automobiles, instead of hundreds that had made buggies. And with the advent of the automobile came the whole tremendous volume of servicing business; the garage business, the tire business, the gasoline and oil business and scores of others.

So also have developed the motion picture industry, which, while threatening jobs in some other sorts of amusements, has given employment to many thousands more. And with like results have come in the oil heating industry, the employment connected with the radio, aviation, electric light and power transmission, and the whole train of manufacturing and distribution of equipment connected with these.

Perhaps the engineers would be better known, multipliers of jobs.

BUSINESS

POSTAL receipts would indicate that business is expanding. If your business is not doing well it may not be altogether because there is no business to be had. Perhaps you are not looking closely enough to determine just what the wants of the people are. Or perhaps you are not advertising in such a manner as to create new wants.

SICK?

AN ounce of illness and a pound of worry might cover the cases of a good many people who are sick or think they are. The best automobile may develop a rattle. It doesn't mean you have to throw the machine on the junk pile. If you find you are not quite up to par, don't worry. Get the repairs made. Usually it's half your imagination. A good physician says: "Seventy-five per cent of the people who come to my office do not have anything organically the matter with them."

TIME TO GO BACK?

IT is surely the age of organization. The civilized world is full of clubs, societies and associations for doing everything that can possibly be done or undoing everything that somebody thinks ought not to have been done. One could easily spend his whole income, even if it were large, on the dues and demands of organizations. Perhaps it is time we unscrambled civilization a little and went back to simpler days and more individualism. Organizations with the most high-sounding titles are not always the most important. Frequently they are not important at all. A feeling of greater personal responsibility and less dependence on organizations would build a finer kind of civilization.

VICTORIES

WE do not hear enough of the battles of peace. The victories that do not deal with war. Yet these non-military victories save more lives than were ever freed by the sword. Thirty years ago the death rate from typhoid fever was 24 per 100,000. Today it is less than five per 100,000 of the population. Thirty years ago the death rate from tuberculosis was 200 per 100,000. Today it is less than 78 and the day will come when there will be practically no tuberculosis. Do you not remember when a man or woman with consumption was doomed? Today there is no doom.

Medical science has won these magnificent victories. The least we can do is to co-operate in the cause of health. Join the doctors in putting the emphasis not on cure but on prevention.

Who's Who—Timely Views

ECONOMIC PROBLEMS DESCRIBED AS REQUIRING ACTION

By Winston Churchill, M. P.

Former Chancellor of the British Exchequer

THE classical doctrine of economics found their citadels for nearly a century in the treasury and the Bank of England, and were all part of one general economic conception, amplified and expounded in all the Victorian textbooks and endorsed by most modern histories. But we are now in the presence of new forces not existing when those textbooks were written, and it is certain that the present economic problem is not solved at all by those books, however illustrious their authors.

It must be observed that economic problems, unlike political issues, can not be solved by any expression, however vehement, of the national will, but only by taking the right action. You can not cure cancer by a majority. What is wanted is a remedy. Every one knows what the people wish. They wish for more prosperity. How to get it? That is the grim question, and neither the electors nor their representatives are competent to answer it.

It would seem, therefore, that if new light is to be thrown upon this grave and clamant problem, it must in the first instance receive examination from a non-political body, free altogether from party exigencies and composed of persons possessing special qualifications in economic matters. Parliament would, therefore, be well advised to create such a body subordinate to itself, and to assist in its deliberations to the utmost.

I see no reason why such an assembly should not debate in the open light of day, and without caring a halfpenny who won the general election or who had the best slogan for curing unemployment, all the grave economic issues by which we are now confronted and afflicted. I see no reason why the economic parliament should not for the time being command a greater interest than the political parliament.

WHAT OTHERS SAY

CAN ANYONE ANSWER?

From the Quannah Tribune-Chief:

WE'VE often wondered why it is that when the average Quannah motorist always has a sort of hostile feeling, the moment he seats himself at the wheel, toward the driver who is coming toward him or who is trying to pass him. Why is it that he harbors a suspicion that the other fellow isn't driving right, or doesn't know how to drive, or ought not to be allowed to drive? Even a pretty girl, charming everywhere else arouses a certain suspicion when she gets back of the steering wheel. When they meet face-to-face, while walking, or in a crowd, these same drivers are cordial, polite and friendly. But let them get out on the road on a Sunday afternoon, for instance, and start cutting in, squeezing the other fellow and honking horns, and they become enemies and can't see any good in each other. Every motorist will have to admit it's true and yet he can't explain it. Can it be that the feeling of power that comes from sitting at a steering wheel, makes the average man a sort of despot, and brings back the old prehistoric desire to "rule or ruin"? It looks like here is another chance for a sort of disarmament conference.

A KING'S DOCTOR BILL

From the Rock Island Argus:

IT is said that the recent illness of King George V of Great Britain cost the royal exchequer about $200,000.

In Buckingham palace a private pharmacy was established where drugs for the use of his majesty were compounded. This caused an expense of not less than $15,000, as the pharmacist had two assistants.

Lord Dawson of Penn gave all his time to the king for several months and his bill was $50,000. Stanley Hewitt gave up his time to the kingly patient and received $2500 a month.

Sir Hugh Rigby performed three operations, and strange as it may seem, received a fee of but $25 each.

Lionel Whitby, a bacteriologist treated the king's blood and his bill was $10,000.

The patient received several ray treatments at a total cost of $10,000.

A staff of six nurses was employed—reduced to four after the crisis had passed—and the nurses were paid the usual fees with a bonus of $50 each when they were dismissed.

A ventilating system for the royal bed-chamber was built by engineers who received $20,000.

Later as the king made progress toward recovery, he was removed to Craigwell house, and this removal was at an expense of $7500, as the king was conveyed to his new abode in a specially constructed ambulance.

Some expressed wonder that the king survived all these ministrations—and doctor's bills.

Guiding Your Child

GOOD WILL
By Mrs. Ames Lyne
We who deal with children are compelled from time to time to make them do things for which they have no natural inclination. Whether they like it or not, they must eat and sleep regularly, brush their teeth, wash their hands and do a dozen other routine things which they may consider irksome. How happily these things are accomplished depends to a large extent upon the amount of good will that has been built up between the child and the adult who is responsible for carrying these matters through. The fact that they are important to his welfare, that he is only being made to do them for his own good carries little or no weight. He obeys because he is forced to, or because he has been well trained in the past or because he has a feeling of good will toward the person who is in charge of him. Mothers, teachers and nurses spend far more than they realize upon this good will which the child feels toward them. Always the people who are most successful in getting children to do things that are good for them but not in themselves pleasurable are those who consciously or unconsciously have established this basis of good will. They have known how to play with children, how to laugh and talk with them. The friendly feeling left by such moments of pleasant companionship helps to make obedience easy. A child seldom minds obeying someone in whom he has affectionate trust. The most conscientious and loving mother who has not been able to win her child's good will will find herself met with stubborn resistance. Her child feels in her demands only the imposition of a superior will upon his own.

A NEW YORKER AT LARGE

By Mark Barron
NEW YORK, (AP)—While cruising among Gulf of Mexico ports several months ago, the captain of a Long Island schooner met a young Japanese student who was stranded in the South. He was taken on the schooner as a deck hand and on the return voyage he became good friends with the captain. It was with regret that they parted here. A few days ago the captain received a small Oriental painting as a token of esteem from his student friend, who has returned to Japan. The painting was hung in a cabin and it was observed there by another friend of the captain's, an art connoisseur. He informed the delighted captain that the "token of esteem" is an ancient painting, probably an heirloom. It is worth quite a few dollars more than passage from the South would have cost the young Japanese.

DIET and HEALTH

BY LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.

"My gums bleed a great deal when I wash my teeth, and two teeth are loose. Are these signs of pyorrhea? What can I do for it?" My dentist said to do nothing but wash my teeth four or five times a day and use a mouth wash which he recommended. I have used it, but my condition is just the same. "MRS. A."

You may have scurvy or pyorrhea, or both, Mrs. A. The gums and the teeth are affected by the diet, and perhaps you are on a deficient diet. Better send for our article on Balanced Diet. (See column rules.)

Scurvy is a disease, one of the characteristics of which is a hemorrhage of the mucous membrane of the skin, and it is due to a diet deficient in vitamin C, which is high in fresh vegetables and fruits, especially tomatoes and the citrus fruits.

Of course, in pyorrhea there is an infection as well, causing pus. But with the right diet and the proper daily cleaning of the teeth and a dental cleaning every six months or so (some need it often), you should not develop pyorrhea.

The best mouth wash is very inexpensive. It consists of one level teaspoonful of salt to the full glassful of water. Wash the teeth first with any preparation that is best liked (it doesn't make any difference; bland soap is probably as good as anything); then with the salt solution, rinse the mouth thoroughly, gargle three times, then hold a small mouthful for five minutes; expel this and gargle again three times.

Editor's Note. Dr. Peters can not diagnose nor give personal advice. Your questions, if of general interest, will be answered in the column in turn. Requests for articles must be accompanied by a fully self-addressed, stamped envelope and 2 cents in coin for each article, to cover cost of printing and handling. For the pamphlet on reducing and gaining, 10 cents in coin, with fully self-addressed stamped envelope, must be enclosed. Address Dr. Peters, in care of this paper.

The proportion of salt is important because, according to Dr. Louise Bell's theory, the germs die in this where they wouldn't if the normal salt solution were used, which is a level teaspoonful to a pint of water, not eight ounces. You should massage your gums, also, with your finger tips, every day. And go to a dentist who specializes in treating pyorrhea.

Mrs. G.—We know that there are but few diseases that are inherited, in the true meaning of the word. Some diseases may be congenital; that is, children may be born with them, but these are contracted from diseased germ plasma, or in other ways before birth. For instance, a child in rare instances may be born with measles or scarlet fever. And if the parents are sufferers from syphilis they are pretty sure to be born with the disease.

We do know this though, about the inheritance of disease: the tendency to certain disease seems to be inherited. For instance, the long narrow thin chest is an inherited characteristic, and these chests are predisposed to lung disorders. Unstable nervous systems may be inherited, so that certain neurotic tendencies seem to run in families; particular types of intestinal tracts that are more susceptible to indigestion, etc., may be inherited also. But all of these tendencies can be overcome by correct living.

Miss F.—Your question on Granular Eyelids is taken up in our article on Common Eye Troubles. See column rules for obtaining it.

Backward Glances

By A. W. NEVILLE

The rebels did not all become "reconstructed" at once, as witness this from the Paris Press, a newspaper published here before and during and for several years after the war. In August, 1865, the editor of the Press said:

"Since Mr. Bramlette, the chief justice of this country, commenced administering the oath on the 21st some 500 persons have taken the oath before him. At this rate the people of this country will soon be able to reorganize under that 'best government the world ever saw,' and being judges of that 'best' and having seen the workings of no other government."

"We have taken the oath with the intention of keeping it in good faith, but we want it distinctly understood that we are no nearer admitting the right of the government to propose and enforce it than we were a month ago. We think Governor Hamilton governs for the sake of the people, not for the sake of the rebels."

A WASHINGTON BYSTANDER

By Kirke Simpson

WASHINGTON, (AP)—The speed with which some 430 members of the house of representatives can demobilize and get to work on their political fences at home, once that branch of congress adjourns in an election year, is startling. One day they are all or nearly all in Washington. Two days later there are hardly a baker's dozen to be found. The house end of the capitol becomes a gloomy, forlorn place.

But one part of the congressional machinery keeps rumbling along despite the absence of representatives. That is the Record.

So many members reserve the right to enter last moment undelivered speeches, or accountings to their districts of what they had been doing in Washington, that it takes days to clean up.

The transcript of proceedings of the second session, seventy-first congress, was still open two weeks after adjournment. It appeared as the "Appendix" now promoted to independent publication, while senate doings in the naval treaty special session came out in a separate volume as "The Congressional Record, special session."

Two Main Issues
If the subject matter of the speeches house members left behind them in Washington to appear in due course in the "Appendix" and be mailed to their constituents, is any indication of what the November elections will turn upon there can be no doubt that the tariff and war veterans' pension legislation hold the center of the political stage.

The first post-session issue of the "Appendix" fairly bristled with these two subjects.

"Reports" To Voters
There were other things than tariff and pensions in that overflow "Appendix," of course. Increasingly house members are taking to making it the vehicle for submitting "reports" to the voters back home.

Hastings of Oklahoma put his in under the frank title "My Record in the first and second sessions, seventy-first congress." It took him ten columns to do it.

His colleague, Cartwright, managed to confine his similar report on himself to a modest two columns. And by way of "conclusion," Cartwright made this remark about the actual work for his constituents which a house member does:

"I have been impressed with the thought that in order to be a reasonably efficient congressman it is essential for one to be a willing errand boy."

Another remark of Cartwright's caught the Bystander's eye as probably the basis on which many members explain some of their votes when they get home. "I have voted for some very good bills," he said, "and for others not because they were good, but because they were the best to be had."

(Paddy) Harmon, who rose from a newspaper boy to builder of the $7,000,000 Chicago stadium, largest indoor sports arena in America, was killed Tuesday by a victim of an automobile accident in which his speeding sedan turned over five times, before plunging into a ditch. Harmon, for twenty-five years one of Chicago's leading sports and amusement promoters, was returning home from his summer home in Crystal Lake, Ill., accompanied by his wife and a guest, Dr. E. T. Brand, when his automobile hit a rough spot in the highway near Des Plaines, a suburb. The speeding machine, with Harmon at the wheel, got out of control. Harvey's clouts sent three runs scampering over the home base. Youngblood contributed Boedeker's extra base wallop with a triple that found the bases clear. Batteries for Amis Bros. were Eldmore, Bell and Bruce Amis; for Boedeker, Ernest and Cain. Grain Embargo At Port Arthur

PORT ARTHUR, July 22 (P)—A qualified embargo on inbound shipments of grain was declared in effect here Tuesday by the Kansas City Southern railroad, due to a congested freight yard. The embargo applies to shipments which do not designate the day on which they will clear the port and on which vessel the cargo will be transported. Officials said there was on hand over 400 carloads of wheat in addition to 30,000 bushels in the elevator, and facilities could not take care of more. They declared they expected the situation to be materially relieved with the arrival of four vessels Thursday or Friday. The announcement said inbound shipments that have definite space on boats that will soon arrive were not affected by the embargo. Port officials said the grain on hand was part of 1,250,000 bushels scheduled to pass through the port within the next 30 days, the largest amount ever to pass through the port in so short a time.

Chick Evans 'Clicks' Again

CHICAGO, July 22 (P)—Charles "Chick" Evans, Jr., came back for more golfing renown Tuesday by wedding into a tie with another Chicagoan, Johnny Lehman, in the fight for the Western amateur championship medal. His war clubs, on a strike almost regularly since he was back in 1923 when he won his twelfth and last open golf crown of any reputation, clicked so brilliantly Tuesday that he carded a 72, one over par on the clubhouse championship. Beverly course, and pulled up from behind to tie with Lehman with a total of 147 strokes. Most of the favorites came through handily, including the two Britons, Cyril Tolley and T. Phillips Perkins, who qualified with 123 and 124, respectively.

THE STORY OF A GIRL WHO DESERVED TO WIN

CHAPTER 29.

John Gregory stopped his car before the old building in the Artists' colony, in which Ivan Moreau maintained his studio. Climbing out he glanced up at the lighted windows with satisfaction, opened the heavy outer door and entered.

At the landing, in the dimly lighted lower hall, he came upon that which for a moment froze the blood in his veins—a girl's body crumpled in a heap, face downward, her clothes almost torn from her.

With a horrified gasp that was almost a groan, and before his reason had warned him of the folly of touching the disheveled form, he had turned it over—and went white with horror. Clara Dee—bruised, soiled, torn, the glossy, black hair in damp, tangled strings over her face—but alive!

Having assured himself of that fact, he glanced carefully about him to make sure that there was no one to witness, and that there was nothing lying about to betray their presence there, took off his coat, wrangled it about the girl's almost naked body, pulled his hat low over his eyes and carried his burden quickly out to his car.

Now what to do? If he only knew something of what had transpired before his finding her at the bottom of the stairs leading to Moreau's studio! He could guess something concerning that. But where was Moreau now? He half wished that he had gone on up to investigate. But his only thought had been to get Clara Dee away before someone else discovered her there.

Should he take her to his home? He considered that for a moment, but decided against it. Perhaps best to take her to Mrs. Flynn's and enlist her sympathy and silence—and get a doctor. He must find out at once how much the girl was injured.

He was glad that she was still unconscious when he reached the lodging house. Mrs. Flynn's face had not lost its puzzled expression over the evening's strange events just past, when she opened the door in response to Gregory's ring and found him standing there, holding Clara Dee's limp body wrapped in his great coat. She flung up her arms as if he had leveled a gun at her, and her eyes grew wildly round.

"The saints preserve us, and what next will this night bring to me!" but without another word she closed the door after him and led the way to Clara Dee's room, where Gregory laid his burden on the bed and gently extracted it from the folds of his coat.

"Don't ask me what happened, Mrs. Flynn. I don't know. But I found her like this and brought her right here. Get her undressed and in bed and I'll get a doctor here as quick as I can. And may I depend upon your absolute silence?" His eyes commanded hers with grave authority and she shoved a yellow banknote toward her. The second of its kind that Mrs. Flynn had been offered that evening! Was the world, indeed, coming to its end?

She folded her hands, raised her chin proudly and something like a snort preceded her words: "Shore, and ye kin depend upon me silence. And begorra, neither will ye need t' be buyin' it. Kape your money and depend on it I'll be doin' all I kin fer her. Poor child!" and she bent over the inert body and with her large, coarse hand pushed back the dank hair from the childish forehead.

Gregory was satisfied and hurried away, dispatched to the lodging house the best doctor he could find; then called Moreau's studio on the phone. After an interminable wait, while the ringing code buzzed, in his ear and the ominous silence continued at the other end of the line, he decided that it would be wise to await developments and to make no further investigations that night.

Mrs. Flynn bustled about, shaking her head and sighing inaudibly, comment. She removed Clara Dee's torn garments and costly pearls, whose value she little guessed, bathed her pale face and cold limp hands, drew on her pajamas. The girl stirred and sighed, opened her eyes, looked wildly about her; and when she discovered Mrs. Flynn's kindly, anxious face above her, burst into violent sobbing.

"Thar, thar, hush, child, ye'll be all right in a minute, that ye will."

the woman comforted her. "Tell me, child, whatever happened to ye?"

"I don't know—just what—did happen," moaned Clara Dee between shuddering sobs.

"Well, niver ye mind now. Thar now, quiet yerself and I'll make ye a cup o' tay. That'll be afther fixin' ye."

Then, as the bell summoned from below, she bustled down to admit the doctor, again heavily ascending the stairs before him.

He entered the room and glanced about apprisingly, noted the form garments on the chair, set down his black bag and approached the bed, where Clara Dee lay with closed eyes—wan, exhausted.

She opened her eyes, startled at his touch, wildly sought Mrs. Flynn's protection.

"Ye must have been hurt, child. Ye was found and brought here in a faint, all torn and dirty. Maybe an accident doctor. Will ye be afther seein' if she's hurt bad?"

"That I didn't."

"Then you should have held him here and reported the affair to the police."

"Shore and me niver thought of that doctor. I was that anxious over the girl, that I lost me senses. I'm thinking."

"Well, nothing can be done about it now, but I'm hoping that nothing serious is wrong."

With skillful fingers he examined her for broken bones, bruises, rubbed his hands together with satisfaction.

"No bones broken, no serious sprain, that is now apparent. Ugly bruises. I'll give you a prescription for those, give her something to drink, a few nights' rest and she'll be alright. He was gauntly tall, bald and peered through thick-lensed, dark-rimmed eyeglasses. But his voice was generously kind, self-effacing. Too bad you didn't turn that fellow over to the police. There's something wrong somewhere. If no more than he knocked her down in the street. Can't you remember what happened to you?" to Clara Dee. But she turned her head to and fro on the pillow and with a little moan, closed her eyes. To Mrs. Flynn, "Call me again if she doesn't come along all right."

Clara Dee awoke on the first day of the new year, to find pale sunlight streaming through the cold air of the room, as if the air were so cold that it awakened the very rays of the sun. With consciousness came the memory of last night's appalling events crowding her mind, tearing her with alternate doubts and fears. How had she come to awake at Mrs. Flynn's? Who had brought her? What had happened?

Carefully, she reviewed each word and gesture of the grotesque fight with Ivan, the very memory of which made her shudder, grow faint. But the last thing she could recall was stumbling through the door which had not resisted her weight against it—as she had expected a locked door to do—then that awful sharp report as she sank down—down into smothering blackness.

She moved tentatively, discovered that the doctor's prognostication were proved correct. She was indeed bruised. But she could not lie here; she must get up presently and find out, if possible, just what had happened.

She crept cautiously and painfully out of bed, closed the window, turned on the spluttering radiator, slipped back into bed and cuddled deep into the coverlets.

BULLETIN POSTS USED IN CHILE

The Chilean government employs the odd looking cylindrical bulletin posts shown in the illustration as a place for displaying decrees and public notices. They are scattered throughout the city and are usually well covered with various official messages and notices of interest to the people.

South of Patagonia in South America lies the furthest south of all South American cities, Punta Arenas, an isolated community belonging to Chile. Punta Arenas is a free market and places no duty on imports or exports of any kind. Trade naturally flourishes. As a source of income, wool leads in importance with whale fishing second.

"Automobiles are very popular in this south community," says Walter R. Klennle, export sales manager of the Graham-PAIGE

"In Punta Arenas, motor cars are only used about four months out of the year because of heavy snows during the winter season," Klennle says, "yet they play an important part in the life of this little community and have contributed much to its growth and development."

"General Banles, present dictator of Chile has brought an era of prosperity to his country that is unmatched elsewhere in South America. More automobile roads are under construction in Chile than at parts of the rest of the country combined. Streets are being widened and paved, and a complete highway is being built from Valparaiso, the chief port of call to Santiago.

New Orleans Cotton
NEW ORLEANS, July 22. (P)—The weather dominated cotton Tuesday although lower cables than due and some liquidation in July were responsible for an early drop of 4 to 10 points. The market rallied on a disappointing weather map, gaining 9 to 13 points later in the morning on an official forecast for showers, but gradually recovered 9 to 10 points after mid-session. Near the end the market eased off slightly. But July jumped 30 points on demand from straddlers who found contracts scarce. The general market closed steady but unchanged for new crop months but 27 points net higher for July.

New York Cotton
NEW YORK, July 22. (P)—A more favorable view of the weather outlook based on forecasts for showers in the western and parts of the central belt led to declines from an early advance in cotton here Tuesday. Considerable uncertainty was felt as to whether the hoped for rains in the droughty sections would materialize, however, and the market steadied up in late trading on renewed covering.

New October after selling up to 13.05 early reacted to 12.85 and closed at 12.96 or 1 point net higher. The general market closed barely steady at a net decline of 1 point on July while later months were net unchanged to 4 points higher.

Chicago Grain
CHICAGO, July 22. (P)—Corn went soaring Tuesday to the highest point reached in many weeks. Purchasing of future deliveries of corn took on large proportions, with numerous traders who were short of corn to fill contracts becoming urgent buyers. Forecasts that suggested a renewal of extreme drought over the corn belt aroused fears of big crop damage, especially as corn growth is now at a critical stage, and there was also uneasiness on account of supplies of corn available at present being much more meager than usual.

Closing quotations on corn were nervous at nearly the day's top level, 1 3/4-7-8c a bushel higher than Monday's finish. Wheat, influenced by the action of corn, closed at 1-2 7-8c net advance, with oats 1-2 3-4c up.

Fort Worth Live Stock
FORT WORTH, July 22. (P)—Cattle trading was very slow here Tuesday. Yard's figures called for 3,300 cattle, 900 calves, 1,500 hogs and 1,300 sheep. All cattle were about steady except steers which were very slow. Rail hogs was steady with truck hogs steady to 15c higher. Sheep were unchanged.

Some steers sold $7 and $7.50 with packers buying some at $4.25, $5.75 and $6.25. One good load of well finished dry lot yearlings offered and due to sell around $10.25. Fat cows sold from $4 to $4.75 with caners from $2.25 to $2.75.

A few heavy calves made $7.

Hogs in the truck division sold up to $9.15. Packer buyers, however, stopped at $9. Two loads of rail hogs sold at $5.90 and $9. Some truck lambs sold at $5.50 year old wethers sold at $4.50 and aged wethers at $4.

Stock Market
NEW YORK, July 22. (P)—The stock market swept aside all opposition from the short interest Tuesday and resumed the advance that had been interrupted by the recent reaction.

The list showed distinct strength in its resistance to further bear selling, moving up three points on the average under the guidance of encouraged bull operators. Three-fifths of Monday's losses were regained.

Commodities firmed in response to weather news. Bonds were dull and steady. Money remained at familiar levels, although some dealers made a reduction in the short maturities of time accommodations.

Stocks soon served notice the bears were in for a battle. The opening was irregularly lower, but there was a marked undertone of strength in important places and the early declines were mostly fractional. Bullish confidence was restored by this demonstration and by afternoon the market was swinging upward. The close was strong at the day's top. Turnover was slightly more than 2,000,000 shares, indicating that the advances had been made largely on professional maneuvers.

ROSALIE, July 21.—While Dess Wicks and Harley Elson from Rosalie were on their way to Cooper Friday morning the coupe they were driving ran into Walter Woods, who was going down the highway north of Bogata horseback. STURGEON WILL SPEAK THURSDAY NIGHT FOR SMALL

The friends of Senator Clint Small, democratic candidate for governor, in Lamar county, are planning a final meeting before the July primary, on Thursday night, July 24th at 8:30 o'clock on the south side of the Plaza in Paris.

Senator Small has made an intensive campaign along conservative lines urging the need of a business administration of the state affairs, pleading for a political armistice and full development of the natural resources of Texas. His platform has been read by thousands of voters in this section of the state and has been favorably received as a statement of governmental policies and ideas greatly needed in Texas at this time. He stresses party harmony and unity in order that it may be most useful.

Since Senator Small came to Paris in the early days of the campaign and has been followed here by almost all of his opponents, each of whom have brought some kind of political charge against him, which his friends desire to see answered in a frank and full manner, it is announced that John Sturgeon, Paris attorney, will speak in behalf of Senator Small's candidacy at the Thursday night meeting. Sturgeon has spoken from Mt. Pleasant to Hereford across the north and west portions of the state in the present governor's race and is thoroughly familiar with the positions which Senator Small takes upon all of the vital issues now being discussed. And all voters, men and women, are cordially invited to attend the meeting and hear the truth about the West Texas senator.

Mr. J. P. Ford, Lamar county farmer will preside as chairman of the meeting and the male quartet composed of Chas. Capell, Earl Dale, W. L. Crain and W. W. West, accompanied by Mrs. Jean Norman at the piano, will sing several numbers before the speaking. It is planned to make the meeting as pleasant and comfortable as possible. Come out and be entertained and informed. (Political Advertisement.)

operated on for appendicitis at the Paris sanitarium and is reported doing nicely.

Miss Cleo Bell of Rosalie spent the week end at Rugby.

Miss Lucille Bell Jones of Austin is visiting here.

W. W. Scott and family have returned from Austin where they visited.

Marvin Thompson and family of Bridgeport are visiting here.

Well! What About It?

I would ring C. G. Moore—he will do the job right as he buys Devco paint direct from factory.

Ring 150, 30 South 19th St.

To My Friends of Lamar County:

Robert Lee Bobbitt, the present attorney general, is, as most of you know, seeking his first elective term in that office. It has been my privilege to serve as an assistant to General Bobbitt during his tenure. I have had every day opportunity of realizing the outstanding legal ability of Mr. Bobbitt and to appreciate his integrity and high ideals. I have no hesitancy in vouching for him and recommending him to my friends every where as being most highly fitted in every way to discharge the duties of the office which he seeks. I know he will render a service in that capacity that will reflect credit upon himself and those who support him and be an estimable benefit to the citizenship of the state.

I will greatly appreciate your consideration of his candidacy and your active co-operation in the election of Robert Lee Bobbitt as attorney general of Texas.

Sincerely,
W. Dewey Lawrence

Operating Revenue Low
AUSTIN, July 21. (P)—An average decrease of 13.56 per cent in operating revenues of Texas railroads during the five months' period ending May 31, 1936, as compared to same period a year ago, was noted Monday in statistical tables prepared by state railroad commissioner.

AUSTIN, July 22. (P)—June royalties on the production of gas and oil on lands of the University of Texas totaled approximately $190,000, C. H. Koch, in charge of the fund, said Monday. This is about $9,000 more than was received in royalties in May with nearly $2,000 more expected.

VOTE FOR Hon. Cecil Storey Of Vernon

FOR

Attorney General

Has practiced law, with distinction, in all the courts of Texas, for 21 years.

Is honest, industrious and conservative.

Texas has had many illustrious Attorneys General as her chief law officers—W. M. Walton, George Clark, James S. Hogg, C. A. Culberson, C. K. Bell and others. In legal attainment, Cecil Storey takes front rank with these great lawyers who have gone before.

His friends resent the attack made upon him by Governor Dan Moody in the Press recently, as being unfair, unwarranted and as seeming to indicate a desire to perpetuate the Moody regime in office.
